

Died.

At her home in DeBeque, Colo., on Thursday afternoon, June 25th, 1896, Marie, wife of Dr. W. A. E. DeBeque, of bilious colic.

On Thursday morning, Mrs. DeBeque went about her accustomed household duties, although complaining of feeling badly. About nine o'clock she sent for Dr. DeBeque, but she gradually grew worse, and at two o'clock he wired Dr. Ingersoll of this city to come up on the evening train. An hour later she died in spite of all the medical assistance and care that he could give her. Dr. Ingersoll visited Dr. DeBeque Friday morning for consultation over her case.

Dr. DeBeque will have the sympathy of a host of friends in his loss and affliction. Mrs. DeBeque was a lady of many good qualities and she will be greatly missed in the community where she has resided for the past ten years. The funeral will take place today, Saturday.

marie_debeque

Clipped By:

skarenm

Thu, Apr 6, 2023